

Rebuild. Reach. Reform. (RRR)

Founder's Vision & Proprietary Frameworks

A Survivor-Led Vision

Rebuild. Reach. Reform. (RRR) was founded by Caitlyn Hudson, a survivor, mother, and entrepreneur who has experienced firsthand the failures of existing domestic and family violence (DFV) responses. Too often, survivors are navigating fragmented systems, unsafe shelters, and overwhelming barriers.

DFV in Australia is a pervasive health and welfare issue, affecting people of all ages and demographics but with a disproportionate impact on women and children. In 2023-24, family, domestic and sexual violence data show that women make up the majority of reported victims, and children are heavily affected in terms of service use and outcomes (Australian Institute of Health & Welfare). AIHW+1

RRR was born not out of theory, but out of lived experience. It is the first survivor-led safety infrastructure model in Australia, and it exists because women who have lived through cycles of violence know exactly where the gaps are — and how to close them.

RRR stands for three promises:

- Rebuild → We help survivors piece together their lives after trauma.
 - Reach → We extend safe, verified, immediate options to those in crisis.
 - Reform → We challenge and change the systems that have failed families for generations.
-

Proprietary Innovations

RRR does not simply provide services. It has developed unique, proprietary frameworks that set a new benchmark for safety and survivor recovery. These innovations belong to RRR and its founder, and they represent world-first combinations of survivor-led insight, psychology, and social enterprise design.

1. Safehaven Hubs

50-bed trauma-informed spaces designed to provide not only shelter but recovery. These hubs integrate eco-resilient infrastructure, therapy spaces, children's play zones, and skills programs, creating safe, sustainable environments where families can heal and thrive.

2. Safehaven Vans

Mobile outreach units that bring crisis support to survivors in urgent need. Unlike existing outreach services, RRR's vans are equipped for safety, anonymity, and rapid deployment — bridging the gap between emergency response and long-term solutions.

3. My Rebuild Journey / MyViolet App

A discreet, AI-enabled platform disguised as a neutral app. Survivors can log meals, naps, and photos while the backend provides real-time data to governments and service providers, showing where funding is most needed. It also houses service directories and survivor-led support tools.

4. Purple Suitcase Kits

Symbolising escape and renewal, these kits provide immediate essentials for women and children forced to flee unsafe environments. Each kit is trauma-informed, age-appropriate, and branded with RRR's survivor-led identity.

5. Verified Safehouse Network

A pioneering accreditation system that allows trusted homes to display recognition decals, signalling they are part of a verified, trained, and monitored network of safe spaces.

Each of these frameworks has been uniquely developed by RRR and is intellectual property of Caitlyn Hudson. They may not be replicated, adapted, or commercialised without written approval.

Intellectual Property & Use

RRR's intellectual property is protected under Australian business law. This includes:

- Business name: Rebuild. Reach. Reform. (registered and linked to ABN 82 615 029 122).
- Trademarks: The names Rebuild. Reach. Reform., Safehaven Hubs, Safehaven Vans, Ask Ruby, MyViolet, Purple Suitcase Kits, and Verified Safehouse Network are proprietary terms.
- Concepts & Materials: All written frameworks, system designs, graphics, training materials, logos, publications, and advocacy documents are copyright © 2025.

All innovations listed above are proprietary to the founder and her enterprise. They may not be copied, adapted, or distributed without explicit written permission.

The Road Ahead

RRR is not a short-term project. It is a 10-year roadmap to reform.

By 2026

- Safehaven Hub and Van pilots in the Northern Territory.
- National partnerships with frontline organisations.
- Publication of the first RRR book: Women Know What Works.

By 2028

- Safehaven Hubs established in every Australian state and territory.
- Full rollout of the Ask Ruby / MyViolet app nationwide.
- Expansion of the Purple Suitcase program into schools, police, and community networks.

By 2030+

- RRR expands internationally, setting the benchmark for survivor-led safety infrastructure worldwide.
 - Global partnerships with NGOs and governments.
 - A recognised international network of survivor-designed Safehaven Hubs and Verified Safehouses.
-

Closing Statement

We see a future where no child has to fall asleep afraid, where women are safe enough to dream again, and where governments can no longer say “we didn’t know what works.”

Rebuild. Reach. Reform. exists to rebuild lives, reach every family in crisis, and reform the systems that failed us.

And it starts here.

© 2025 Rebuild. Reach. Reform. Proprietary Social Enterprise. All rights reserved.

Reference List

1. Australian Institute of Health & Welfare (2025). Family, Domestic and Sexual Violence data in Australia. AIHW
2. Australian Institute of Health & Welfare (2025). Family, Domestic and Sexual Violence Summary. AIHW
3. Homelessness Australia (2024). Homelessness & Domestic and Family Violence: State of Response Report. The Deck
4. Safe Life Australia (2024). Domestic Violence Figures Australia. Safe-Life
5. Australian Bureau of Statistics (2023). Personal Safety Survey 2021-22: Experiences of Physical, Sexual, Emotional and Economic Abuse. Australian Bureau of Statistics